Politicians, trying to please railroad owners, and hang onto the vote of union labor, at next election, have a difficult job.
They can sympathize with the old woman of whom the beggar tells. She burned her candle to St. Michael, and another candle to his dragon. She wanted to be safe on both sides.

We don't know what happened to the old lady, but can guess what will happen to the Republican party, if the drifting continues.

The Republicans are wondering how much their majority will be cut down in the House of Representatives. The probability is that there won't be any Republican majority. And that will be bad, as this country needs a working machine.

Boddy, young negro, twenty-two years old, killed two detectives. He was electrocuted and buried in New York on Labor Day. Thirty thousand of his race visited the undertaker's shop where he lay exhibited.
Thousands lined the streets as his coffin passed.

Those that were able to crowd into the church and see Boddy's mother and other relatives were told by the clergyman that Boddy's last words to his relatives were, "Go home, I will meet you in the kingdom."

There is a good deal of meaning in these facts, a meaning depressing to those interested in the negro's progress. But while remembering the young negro that killed two and, that his people unwisely chose to honor, don't forget another negro, the only human being except Peary that went to the North Pole.
Perhaps if more negroes had the opportunity IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION that Peary gave his people compassion, there would be less of a negro problem.

In twelve months the Pennsylvania railroad has carried 152, 000,000 passengers without killing one of them. A fine record.
The railroad is praised, deserves
it. But the railroad managers don't know that the railroad is revolving chairs or to financiers, sitting beside tickers, that run and own and run the railroad.

Fact that 750,000,000
Americans traveled without

HOTEL RAID LEADS TO LOVE SUIT

Billerica Merchant Accused of Breaking Up Home; Sued for $25,000

A raid on a Lowell hotel room some weeks ago resulted today in the filing of a $25,000 allegation of affection with the East Cambridge Court by Elmer E. Ferrigno of Bedford.
Ferrigno alleges that Edw. F.
Twombly, Billerica merchant, and former town official, stole his wife's love and broke up his home. Twombly, who has been married twice, is divorced from his second wife. He runs a general store at Twombly square, Billerica, and is known as quite a "man about town." An attachment was filed on his property several weeks ago.

"Ferrigno grew suspicious of his wife," said counsel for Ferrigno, "and traced the couple one night to a Lowell hotel. They had registered as man and wife. The couple were taken to the police station for explanation."

Twombly complained to the police that he was in the hotel to transact business with Mrs. Ferrigno, relative to the financing of a chicken farm for Mrs. Ferrigno. No arrests were made.

Some time ago Mrs. Ferrigno brought a divorce suit in New Hampshire charging her husband with cruel and abusive treatment.
She is now living at her home in Bedford, N. H.

TAKEN IN AUTO AS DRUNK

Mounted Policeman Chases
Zig-Zagging Motorist Over
Harvard Bridge

William F. Clapp, a Harvard instructor, led Mounted Policeman Francis Sullivan a wild chase today, before he was arrested in Cambridge charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor, drunkenness and refusing to stop on signal.

With the Harvard teacher in the hedge class was Ernest Hendre, one of the crew of the famed Esperanto.
In Roxbury Court today Clapp pleaded not guilty to the charges and bail was set at $200 for his appearance September 12.

According to Officer Sullivan's story, he was at the corner of Massachusetts avenue and Beacon street when he saw an automobile at high speed slew into the curve from Commonwealth avenue into Massachusetts. He signaled the driver to stop, but instead the zig-zagging auto made straight for him, driving him to the sidewalk to avoid being struck.

Then he gave chase, and as he was mounted on the fastest horse in the local police department, he all but overtook the fleeing car on Harvard bridge. Clapp, he said, slowed down, but when the patrolman started to dismount the Harvard man stopped on her once more.
At the Cambridge end of the bridge Sullivan leaped from his horse, commandeered an auto and finally caught Clapp in Central square.

NEW BLOCKADE DELAYS SAVING 47 MINERS

Jackson, Cal., Sept. 6.—Hope of rescuing alive the forty-seven miners in the depths of the Argonaut mine here today was materially lessened when rescue crews reported that after piercing one of the stone walls in the Kennedy mine at the 3,600-foot level they found the drift toward the Argonaut blocked with muck and broken timbers.
The work will be delayed two or three days by this before the rescuers can reach the last remaining seventy-five-foot wall separating the Argonaut from the Kennedy.

Memorial Hospital she screamed:
"I got it because I wanted to die.
Oh, God, I wanted to die."

road to recovery the girl retracted her previous story to her police.
"I was ill and in groping in a dark room I took the wrong bottle. It is all a mistake," she declared.
The police, however, are skeptical.

by the radiant rays of gas...

"The value a household gets from the fuel he burns depends largely upon the character of the heating apparatus, the conditions under which it is installed and the manner in which the fire is handled."

It is in the last phrase which we have printed in italics that you will find the key to systematic saving of both fuel and labor.
"Most people," says the Government expert, "start the furnace fire too early in the fall, overtake it and force it for extreme heat too suddenly in very cold weather and burn it too late into the spring."
During the chilly fall months, it is economy to use city gas in one of the modern and highly efficient types of heaters. Here you are burning what the Government describes as "the ideal fuel."
You cannot "turn on" the furnace fire for a half hour or so to take the chill off the house on an autumn day. The radiant rays of gas will do this for you; quickly, cleanly, economically—because you do not need heat for long periods of time—nor much of it. And your house will have that cheerful atmosphere that makes it home. Here are the Government's five ways of saving fuel. By following this plan, which plainly indicates the advantage of the RADIANT RAYS OF GAS AS SUPPLEMENTAL HEAT, you will save many tons of coal:

1. Select the fuel that requires the least attention.
2. Use an economical method of firing your coal by feeding the furnace regularly.
3. Heat fewer rooms.
4. Keep the house temperature lower. A temperature of 65 degrees instead of 72 degrees will save 15 to 20 per cent of fuel.
5. Shorten the heating season as much as possible.

(From U. S. Government Bulletin 199)

IMPORTANT. Do not postpone purchasing new gas equipment or notifying us about putting your present appliances into first-class condition. Later, we will probably be rushed with orders, at which time it will be impossible to give prompt service to all customers.
GAS CONNECTIONS SHOULD BE MADE PERMANENTLY WITH IRON PIPING. Do not under any circumstances attempt to make these connections yourself. This work should be done by a licensed gas fitter. The city directory tells you where to locate one. Call at this office or telephone your request for an inspector to look over your equipment. He will tell you what is needed to put your appliances into good shape or make suggestions for new appliances. We are prepared to give every possible assistance to avert suffering from lack of heat due to the coal shortage to our present gas customers. For any information call Beech 7060, or in person at any one of our offices.

YOUNG HAVERHILL WOMAN KILLS SELF WITH HER HEAD ON BIBLE

HOPED HUSBAND WOULD FIND LIFELESS FORM

Haverhill, Sept. 6.—Her head pillowed on a Bible on the floor of her kitchen, where she hoped her husband would find her, twenty-three years old Mrs. Elsie Gentner committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in her apartment No. 28 White street today.

The still-living form of the woman, who had been separated from her husband for three months, was found by a friend, Miss Lee Moore, who had promised she would call at the house this morning.

According to the police, the husband, Ralph Gentner, had been so distressed to visit his wife every morning since the separation, while on his way to work. He failed to call today.

The Gentners separated three months ago, and their one child, a boy two years old, was placed out to board. Mrs. Gentner took a two room apartment on White street and her husband made his home elsewhere.

On Saturday Mrs. Gentner was away, and again on Monday, returning in her apartment early last evening. On her arrival she found that a number of her small treasures had been destroyed and her clothing had disappeared.

She went to the home of Miss Moore and told the girl that her husband had taken this form of revenge because he had found letters written her by another man. It is said Gentner believed his wife was with the other man over the holiday. Mrs. Gentner asked Miss Moore to spend the night with her, but the girl refused. The request was then made that Miss Moore come to the apartment of Mrs. Gentner early today.

When Miss Moore arrived she found the kitchen of the little apartment filled with gas, flowing from an opened jet, and the body of Mrs. Gentner on the floor. Dr. T. N. Stone was summoned, but pronounced the woman dead, from suicide induced by despondency.

Newfoundland Is Menaced by Fish Famine

Sydney, N. S., Sept. 6.—Complete failure of the shore fisheries on the northeast coast of Newfoundland this season is threatening the people of the district with starvation next winter, according to reports here. Schooners engaged in the northern fisheries this season were only about one-third as many as ten years ago yet individual vessels reported the scantiest catches on record.

Reports from the Labrador coast describe the fishing there as the worst in 25 years.

JUDGE SCORES PLANS OF NINE RECEIVERS

Judge George W. Anderson, in the U. S. District Court today scored the reorganization plans of the New York Quicksilver Mining Company at a hearing granted stockholders who oppose the reorganization.

"On its face showing, I wouldn't put up a cent," he said. He pointedly made caustic remarks regarding the reorganizations during the hearing. He stated that the plan was misleading in many details.

The reorganization plan, proposed in a circular issued by the receivers was that each stockholder was to produce 52 per cent of stock on July three or lose their holdings in the new company to be formed.

The plan was opposed by George J. McLean, H. Nelson Fletcher, Colonel Percy Goddard and others on the plea that it was a scheme to mulct the company by the receivers and otherwise interested.

Mrs. Andrew Ains, wife of the former western magnate, was an interested spectator during the hearing and will later be an important witness opposing reorganization.

GIRL IN RIOT CASE TOLD TO 'RUN ALONG'

Dorothy Dupont of Allston street, Somerville, whose arrest for drunkenness in the Back Bay nearly precipitated a riot was found guilty today in Municipal Court. The 23-year-old girl was here from New York and was going right back. The Court placed the case on file and told her to run along.

Andrew J. Passetti, colored, who was arrested, charged with trying to rescue the girl from the police, was found not guilty. The arrest was made by Patrolman Brown.

According to the police, Miss Dupont, much more for liquor, was staggering along a few paces ahead of four young men, who were hailing her for her condition. Brown dispersed the four men and then approached the young woman, who was quite pretty. A crowd, which had gathered, apparently misunderstood the officer's motives, and pressed forward threateningly. The man who was with her, Miss Dupont, was released, and the policeman was threatened with bodily harm. Brown kept his head, but was shoved along with his prisoner until they were in front of No. 214 Huntington avenue. Here, the police saw Passetti, left his automobile and pushed into the centre of the disturbance, wrench in hand.

HONOR MEMORY OF LAFAYETTE IN N. Y.

New York, Sept. 6.—Under a broiling sun, a thousand or more Americans stood today and honored the memory of Lafayette and the French stand at the Marine in a joint Lafayette-Margate celebration in Union square.

General John J. Pershing, commander of the American Expeditionary Force, was the principal speaker of the day. He praised Colonel Chamberlain, discoverer of Lafayette, who was on the American staff in the World War, and paid tribute to the genius of Lafayette.

Several prominent Frenchmen attended. Count de Chambrun, French Ambassador, to the United States and a brother of the Countess de La Roche, French ambassador, officially represented the country.

2 CLAIM MAN SCALDED TO DEATH BY ONE

Pawtucket, Sept. 6.—Scalded from head to foot when his wife threw a tub of boiling water on him an effort to defend herself from his alleged abuse, John Greenman of No. 123 Hughes avenue died of his injuries at the Memorial Hospital here. His wife, who had been stricken with remorse, and who remained by his bedside until the end, had hardly been led away to her home after John when a heavily veiled woman appeared at the hospital and declaring she was the real Mrs. Greenman, claimed his body.

When the hospital authorities refused to give up the body without more satisfactory proofs of identification, the woman left, saying she would come back today with attorneys to press her claim, she will take legal action, she said, to establish her contention that she is really Greenman's lawful wife.

According to the story told by the wife, Greenman returned to his home in an intoxicated condition and began to abuse her. She tried to call him, she said, but had no success. Fearing that she would be badly injured, she said, she went to the store and seized the tub of boiling water. Greenman fell to the floor, screaming with pain. Mrs. Greenman, after several unsuccessful attempts to get a physician, summoned the police, who removed him to the hospital.

Mrs. Greenman said she knew her husband had another wife, but maintained silence because he refused to get a divorce. She said that he came home drunk a year ago and told her he had another wife, to whom he had been married for twenty-five years.

PASTOR SUES RAIL MEN ASK WIFE DESPITE CONFESSION

Portland, Me., Sept. 6.—Despite the fact that Evelyn Goodell of Windsor, Mass., retracted her story that Joseph N. Walker, twenty-year-old pastor of the Windsor Congregational Church, was the father of her child, Walker's suit for divorce against his wife, Grace Woodbury Pilling Walker, was filed here today.

The minister accuses his wife of deserting him.

Windsor, Sept. 6.—The Rev. Joseph Walker, pastor of the Windsor Congregational Church, has been officially and finally cleared of the charges made against him several weeks ago by his eighteen-year-old parishioner, Evelyn Goodell, who had named him as father of her three-week-old baby.

Returning to his town from the Boston hospital where she gave birth to the child, Miss Goodell charged that previous statements that the minister is absolutely innocent, and named a young Windsor man as the real father.

The girl said that the youth was her father, the child in question was a prominent in church circles and that she had previously mentioned in connection with the case. He attacked her last November, she says, while she was alone in the church.

RAIL MEN ASK BE IMPEACHED

Chicago, Sept. 6.—Seven representatives of the striking federated credits were declared by John Stettin, secretary of the railway executives' department of the American Federation of Labor, to be in Baltimore today for a conference with railroad executives on a proposition to end the strike.

New York, Sept. 6.—Initiation of proceedings for the impeachment of Attorney General Daugherty and Federal Judge Wilkeson of Chicago, on the ground that the strike injunction granted by the latter at the former's request was in violation of the Constitution, was urged on Sen. Borah in a telegram sent today by John J. Dowd, chairman of the general strike committee of the Eastern Railroad Shopmen.

Washington, Sept. 6.—Playing the Chicago rail injunction as "a violation of law and the Constitution," Senator Robinson Democrat, of Arkansas, today condemned the government's conduct of strike negotiations.

In a speech in the Senate, he charged the injunction exceeded the powers of the court and was a violation of the "Constitutional guarantee of freedom of speech, freedom of the press and the right of peaceable assembly."

Tentative Peace Agreement Reached

By Universal Service.
Copyright, 1922, by National Service and the Chicago Herald and Examiner.

Chicago, Sept. 6.—A tentative peace agreement has been reached between representatives of the striking Chicago Herald and Examiner and representatives of the railroad. Final action is expected to be taken tomorrow.

Negotiations have been conducted secretly in the East, it became known by Universal Service.

R. M. Jansett, president of the Railroad Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, directing head of the strike, is expected to reach Chicago today. He has called a meeting of the ninety members of his policy committee for tomorrow. It is expected that the committee will ratify the agreement.

The terms of the agreement have been closely guarded, but are said to provide that the railroad grant the men an increase of seven cents an hour over the scale defined in the decision of the United States Railway Labor Board, against which the strikers struck.

A compromise was effected on the matter of seniority rights. But, according to information reaching here, none of the old employees will get their jobs back. It is expected that the most complete of the new men will be retained.

The increase of seven cents an hour over the scale was recently promulgated by the Labor Board. Before the board's clash the minimum was 77 cents an hour. This was reduced to 79 cents an hour and by the new agreement it will go back to 77 cents.

Hartford, Sept. 6.—Nineteen men and women residents of New Bedford, arrested for stealing grapes from a farm in West Barnstable, were today sentenced to 19 days in jail by Judge W. W. Redish, who is candidate for the Republican nomination for attorney general, were arraigned in local court, and given six months suspended sentence each. SEX EQUALITY WRECKS

WIFE TO STAY IN U. S.

Refuses to Go to South America After Taste of Country's Freedom.

An international romance—love at first sight and the subsequent elegance of the Biltmore Hotel, New York, courting in the elite embassies of the nation's capital, and honeymoon in the diplomatic circles of Paris, Brussels and London—to day came to grief in the police station of Lewiston, Maine.

For petite Yvonne Laos, wife of the Peruvian attaché at Washington, Mariano A. Laos, appealed to the police for protection from her irate husband, who had pursued her there from Boston, following her refusal to go to South America with him, whither he had been ordered by his government on a diplomatic errand, and not to pursue the "Rudolph Valentino" calling of bull fighter.

Laos was mentioned in earlier days as a tenderfoot, owing to the fact that some time ago his name appeared in a story written about his brother, Domingo Laos, formerly a student at Harvard, in which his experiences on his father's extensive plantations and ranches in South America were related.

Wife of the Peruvian attaché at Washington who refuses to accompany him to South America because of repugnance for the Latin restrictions upon women, after tasting the freedom accorded her sex in America.

HATES LATIN TRADITIONS.

Yvonne Laos, as I call her by way of endearment—wanted me to go to South America with him," sobbed the girl wife. "I could not go. South Americans—oh, they are good people there, but the restrictions they place upon their women, I never could endure. I once went there with my husband, shortly after our marriage. Though his people were wonderful to me, I felt the repression of it all. I have tasted of the freedom of the American women, I can not go back with him, even though he is ordered back there on duty by his government."

FOLLOWS HER TO MAINE.

According to Yvonne, he agreed to let her go to the country to think her problem out. He went to New York and she to Lewiston, where his return, he noted his wife's absence, and at once rushed to Lewiston, Me. Before the police chief, Mariano avowed his love for his wife and his right, under Peruvian traditions, to take her where he wished.

"You are a Peruvian. You must come with me," declared Mariano to his wife.

"But I want to be an American," she replied.

"You are my wife, and I want you to come to me."

"She is an American, and she does not want to go with you unless she wants to," interposed the police lieutenant to the diplomatic visitor.

"You are dead," Yvonne said, "I mean to think—to be alone with my thoughts, to try to see if my way. I have you dear, I would go anywhere with you except South America."

"All right, I will stay in America then if you will come with me, right away," Mariano replied.

RECOVER 25 BODIES IN MINE EXPLOSION

Whitehaven, England, Sept. 6. (By The Associated Press.)—Twenty-five bodies had been recovered today from the coal pit in which forty men were entombed by an explosion yesterday. Heavy falls of rock and the presence of much gas are hampering recovery, and it is feared that the pit will have to be sealed, as was the case when 136 workmen were killed in a coal-mining mine in 1916.

POISON LIQUOR KILLS 7 IN BROOKLYN

New York, Sept. 6.—Two women and two men were under arrest in Brooklyn today while the police made an investigation of the sale of poisonous gin and whiskey which killed five men and two women and drove another man blind. Two different raids were made in Brooklyn.

William Keenan, aged forty, stumped up to Policeman William Neary in Dikeman street, Brooklyn.

"There is a woman upstairs dead and I am going blind," said Keenan. "They sold us poison for whiskey."

The dead woman proved to be Mrs. Theresa Martin, Keenan's landlady. Keenan and the police to Mrs. Viala's grocery store, saying that the whiskey had been purchased there on Labor Day. Later, Keenan was taken to the King's County Hospital, where he died from alcohol poisoning.

The other raid was at the home of Mrs. Resle in Brooklyn. It followed a visit to the police station by Edwin Matson who said that some of his friends had been killed by drinking synthetic whiskey. The raid failed to reveal any evidence of liquor.

MISS LACEY, MAYOR'S TYPIST, IS BRIDE

Miss Yvonna A. Lacey, stenographer at the Mayor's office for the past three years, was married to William T. Murphy in St. Peter's Church, Meeting House Hill, Dorchester, by the Rev. J. J. Dean of St. John's Church, South Boston.

Miss Lacey is a clerk in the city hall, where she has been employed for several years, connected with the Bureau of Public Service, and North Postal Station.

After the reception at the home of the bride, at which nearly a hundred guests were present, the couple left for a ten days' trip to New York, Atlantic City and Washington.

The stenographer at City Hall temporarily appeared in Roxbury Court today as both plaintiff and defendant in an assault case involving two women of color, Blanche Henderson and Evelyn Davis, both of No. 116 Harrison avenue.

Priest said that some time ago he sold Mrs. Henderson furniture on the installment plan and after a few payments she disappeared. He charged her and drove up in a taxi to take the furniture away.

The two women at first remained quietly, then not so gentle and finally they set upon him, he said, three plates at him—his own plate—battered him against the wall and did bodily injury to him. He offered the brides as evidence.

The outcome was that Priester left the house so hurriedly that he not only took no furniture with him, but left his hat and his glasses behind. Blanche and Evelyn denied the charges, saying on the contrary that Priester had assaulted them.

Flap Weeps O'er Her Own Pail at Scrubwoman's Romance

SUDS! WHAT DOES A SCRUB-WOMAN THINK ABOUT?

Well, how the soap is lathering, how much harder her work is in the rainy season when everybody tracks mud in, and sometimes—about romance.

By THE FLAPPER Caryl Frank

There was a lively light when I reported for work on the night scrubbing floor.

The night watchman and one of the other scrubwomen were at each others' throats.

"You did, I say," the little wisp of a woman was saying.

"It's crazy you are, Annie," the night watchman retorted.

"I never did such a thing in my life. If your soap's gone, then somebody else took it. I never—"

"Huh h," snorted Annie. "S'ny funny. One night I miss my soap an' the next night you come down clean—"

IT'S A TOUGH JOB.

"Stop yer' fightin', you lazies!" interrupted a buxom scrub woman, who had scrubbed her half-way down the corridor while the fight had been getting good.

"You'll never get anywhere in the world goin' on like that all the time."

Calling a board polisher lady is just plain silly. I've heard that working in mines, foundries and on farms was a rather difficult way of earning the old bread, but those occupations are just a long rest compared with professional scrubbing.

"S'none o' her business," Annie complained as she took up her pail and brush.

"She makes me sick."

ROMANCE IN SUDS.

My own area as laid out by the janitor led me Annie's way, and we scrubbed together sharing soap and washing powder and ideas.

"I don't care," Annie took up. "I've just about scrubbed this floor. Soon's Evelyn marries her rich young man, my 'druggin' days'll be over as I'll be livin' on Commowells like a queen as well as any of 'em."

"Who's Evelyn?" I asked.

"The soap please, Evelyn's my daughter, an' a beautiful girl. I do say it as I shouldn't."

"But, if you have a daughter, why do you hafta scrub of 'fice buildings at night. Why doesn't she take care of you?"

SOFT MUSIC STUFF.

"You don't know Evelyn, why do you hafta scrub of 'fice buildings at night. Why doesn't she take care of you?"

"I don't see how a daughter can let her mother—"

"Oh, you mustn't be so hard on Evelyn," interrupted her mother. "She don't know how to earn my money."

"But doesn't she see you goin' on to work?" I asked.

"No," proudly answered Annie. "I've seen to that. I've had her away to a swell board-in school ever since she was a little girl. She thinks I'm travelin' in Europe. Sometimes it almost breaks my heart when I think how neglected she must feel. But some day it'll be all right. She'll marry a rich man an'—"

But by this time midnight had come and the others on the night shift had overtaken Annie and I with lunch boxes and loud gossip.

ANNIE'S EXPOSED.

Annie quickly picked up her pail and walked off by herself.

"Has she been tellin' you about her precious Evelyn?" the buxom one wanted to know.

"Yes," I said. "An' I think it's a shame."

"Cheer up," said the other scrubwoman. "Evelyn's only made-up. She had us all goin' too, at first, until we found out. It was just her way o' bein' better'n the rest of us. She'd tell us about the swell clothes Evelyn had on, all, and it was make us feel lower'n her. But then we found out."

The buxom one burst into loud laughter and almost strangled on a liver sausage sandwich.

"Evelyn's a yim!" she choked.

"Why? there ain't no more Evelyn than a rabbit. There's no yer'."

FIRST MATE RUNS AMUCK ON SHIP

The police of the Harbor Station today received a message stating that the three-master Allen M. Colburn, anchored off Castle Island, wanted police aid.

The schooner had hailed a passing ship and requested that police aid be summoned, as the first mate was running amuck.

The police boat Guardian, in command of Sergeant Ryan, sped to the scene and boarded the Colburn. They found a panicky crew trying to calm First Mate John Olsen of No. 211 Hanover street. It developed that Olsen's running amuck was pain from an acute attack of pleurisy. He was removed to the Relief Hospital, where it was said he was in a dangerous condition.

TAKES POISON AFTER QUARREL WITH HUSBAND

Following a quarrel with her husband in their apartment, No. 28 Westland avenue, Mrs. Doris Stern, twenty-three years old, attempted suicide today by swallowing the contents of a bottle of disinfectant.

Her husband, Charles Stern, notified police headquarters and the woman was removed to the City Hospital, where it was said she would recover.

Stern told reporters he knew of no reason why his wife should attempt to take her life. The police say, however, he told them they had quarreled and then retired in their apartment, Suite 7. A short time later he heard his wife get up and go into the bathroom. Then he heard a fall, and investigating found the woman on the floor, a bottle lying near her head. Stern said there were traces of disinfectant on his wife's mouth and on the floor.

Patrolmen Fisk, Davenport and Willerton were rushed to the house and the woman was hurried to hospital, where a stomach pump was employed.

QUINCY TAX RATE DROPS 20 CENTS

Quincy's tax rate for 1923 will be $36.20, a reduction of 20 cents, according to an announcement by Mayor William A. Bradford today.

The low rate was a surprise as residents of the city had expected a 23 cent rate. The city lost $100,000 in personal taxes, but gained $1,532, 629 in real estate, making a net gain of $1,432,629.

The total valuation was $18,237, 025, with a building boom under way, most of the houses not being included in the tax rate, as they were started after April 1.

FEARS HER MISSING SON IS KIDNAPED

Disturbed after a night spent vainly searching hospitals and police stations for her missing eight-year-old son, Mrs. Margaret Perry, mother of young John Perry, said today that she believed the lad had been kidnaped. He has been missing from his home at No. 13 Market street, South Boston, since Saturday afternoon.

The boy's disappearance is a most mysterious case. The police have been called on to solve in connection with the disappearance of the boy's mother, Mrs. Perry, who said she had been told that her son was in the hands of a kidnaper.

Edward Fiskling, top of the Boston Police's disclosure that forty-one young girls are missing from their homes Mrs. Perry feels sure some harm has befallen her son.

GIRL OF 16 ELOPES; FATHER MAKES THREAT

Man proposes and woman then does what she has decided to do all along, in this land of the free.

Traditions and customs may crumble and confine women in other countries, but in this United States, as the campaign orators would say.

All of which was borne upon the nose of the perturbed mind of Michael Dagnese of No. 44 Pleasant street, Lynn, today, when he learned his daughter had eloped.

The girl, Edith Dagnese, sixteen years of age, had been promised in her cradle as the wife of the son of a friend, as is the Italian custom, at that time Edith displayed no interest in the matter, but as the years went on she developed a will of her own.

She further developed a strong, not to say impregnable, determination to marry the man of her choice, doing parents and ancient traditions to the contrary notwithstanding.

This dawned on Dagnese when, after discovering his daughter's bed had not been slept in, he went forth to make inquiries today.

Dagnese encountered Andrew Noland of No. 78 Pleasant street, Lynn, who had identified Michael Dagnese with Noland's daughter, his chosen man. He added that Noland's marriage intentions fifteen days ago.

Dagnese was so incensed that he threatened to kill Noland for not having informed Dagnese that his daughter had eloped with Noland. In the meantime no trace has been found of the missing couple or the girl's father.

Stern told reporters he knew of no reason why his wife should attempt to take her life. The police say, however, he told them they had quarreled and then retired in their apartment, Suite 7. BLOOD TEST TO TELL INFANT'S PATERNITY

South Bend, Ind., Sept. 5.—More scientific analysis of the chemical character of the blood of the two men in Indiana's domestic "quadrangle" may be made to establish the paternity of the nine-month-old child who, temporarily at least, bears the name of John P. Tierman.

A revoking medical science to corroborate his charges against his erstwhile house companion, Harry Paulin, is being received by Professor Tierman as a final step.

Preliminary hearing of the case before Justice A. W. Monahan was postponed until September 11 under a joint agreement. Professor Tierman said.

"We have been in communication with Dr. D. Thaddeum in California," he recognized expert in this phase of chemical analysis, and he is prepared to make the necessary examinations as soon as he receives word.

"We believe our evidence is now sufficient, but I will leave nothing undone to expose Paulin. This charge of evidence is legally admissible, but its credibility in identifying paternity must be determined by medical men."

The Tierman case has aroused much interest among lawyers owing to the fact that, unlike the famous Ruffian suit and other actions in vengeful maternity, the proceedings were initiated in the criminal and not civil court. Professor Tierman added.

"I am willing to withdraw as a witness myself—content to rest our case in the conclusive story my wife will relate. In such a case the statement of the mother receives no corroboration."

Justice Monahan said this was true except when the defendant contradicted the charges, which Paulin states he intends to do with all of the proof he can muster.

Mr. Harrison said it was up to the court to decide. In the mean time he would attempt to hold both jobs.

TROUSERS OF CAMP DEVENS MENEAGED BY TWO FIRES

Michael Rebecs of 1154 street, Lynn, possessed a pair of Sunday breeches (trousers) that were the apple of his eye of his wife Clementina.

All Clementina's trousers were of fashion and a model of form.

On Sunday and festival days, wearing the sturdy blue of Rebecs, they led a procession of Rebecs off to church. They seemed to say to all and sundry who came to listen, that here was a man of importance in the community.

It happened between this that a terrible blow fell on the Rebecs family. The trousers were lost, disappearing at the same time as Joseph Rebecs, his wife's friend.

Great was the lamentation in the Rebecs household. Many times were looked on the head of the man who they believed had betrayed them. There was weeping and gnashing of teeth.

That was a year ago. Time, which heals all wounds, did the anguish somewhat, but still the memory of the trousers lingered. And today, Maria, Clementina was down to do her marketing. With several along Union street, she held a vision.

The lost, lamented trousers faded by her. It could not be true, but it was. One intent look identified them. Then, straight as an arrow, Maria Clementina rushed to police headquarters and told her tale in vivid broken English. She insisted that the police that officers were sent out to search for the trousers and demand an accounting.

Camp Devens, Sept. 5.—Two fires, both believed to have been incendiary in origin, today destroyed the barracks and stable here, despite the efforts of troops who turned out to aid the fire fighters.

The buildings destroyed were empty, and were a mile and a half apart. The barracks was that of Company G, 12th Infantry. The stable was located in the Quartermaster Corps area.

The first blaze was discovered shortly after midnight. A call was sounded to which every man in camp responded who could be spared. By hard work the blaze was confined to the building in which it started. The second fire broke out some two hours later. A band of officers is conducting an investigation.

That was a year ago. Time, which heals all wounds, did the anguish somewhat, but still the memory of the trousers lingered. And today, Maria, Clementina was down to do her marketing. With several along Union street, she held a vision.

The lost, lamented trousers faded by her. It could not be true, but it was. One intent look identified them. Then, straight as an arrow, Maria Clementina rushed to police headquarters and told her tale in vivid broken English. She insisted that the police that officers were sent out to search for the trousers and demand an accounting.

Ten Years at Filene's

Plain facts and figures of the last decade

AS promised yesterday, we begin today a tale unadorned of 10 years' progress in the new Filene store.

We said this was to be a tale of growth. Let the figures speak for themselves.

	Year ending August 31, 1922	Year ending August 31, 1912	Increase
ANNUAL NET SALES	$23,300,700	$4,810,900	$18,489,800
NO. OF SALES TRANSACTIONS	9,942,290	1,603,600	8,338,690
NO. OF EMPLOYEES AVERAGE DURING YEAR	2,850	1,047	1,803
ANNUAL PAYROLL	$3,837,800	$768,180	$3,069,620
AVERAGE WAGE	$1,346.60	$733.70	$612.90

REMEMBER, in reading the sales figures of the year just ended—over TWENTY-THREE MILLIONS of dollars—that this is a specialty shop selling only clothes and accessories, and not a department store catering to all human needs.

This is one of the largest businesses of its kind in the world. With your help we propose to make it twice as large. There should be no limit for an organization founded on the solid rock of SERVICE.

STUDY those payroll figures, you who wonder why goods cost so much more at retail than at wholesale. Remember as you read that for every dollar of payroll there is approximately sixty-five cents of other expense to be added to what we pay the maker for merchandise before the real cost is arrived at, and before we begin to make any profit.

Note the number of men and women who depend on this one store for their livelihood, to realize what this and other retail businesses mean in the life and prosperity of a community.

Read Chapter 3—tomorrow

Among the Attractions will be an exhibition of ballroom dancing by Elizabeth Hines, now starring in "Little Nellie Kelly." Cards of admission may be had on application at Personal Service Bureau, street floor balcony, and Information Desk, sixth floor.

AUTOS KILL 5, 4 OF THEM CHILDREN

Five persons were killed, three of them children, and a sixteen-year-old boy was fatally injured in automobile accidents throughout New England yesterday.

Maitha Shields, nine years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Maitha Shields of No. 511 Dorchester ave. South Boston, was struck and knocked down by a machine in front of her home. She died on the way to the City Hospital. The automobile was owned and operated by Christe Joseph, twenty-three years old, of No. 116 West Broadway, South Boston. He was arrested for manslaughter.

In Providence Giuseppe Picarello, eleven years old, of No. 11 Huntington avenue, was killed by an automobile while playing in the street. Frank Lunn of No. 584 Broadway, Providence, took the boy to the hospital but he died on the way. The automobile was owned and driven by James P. Clonan of No. 13 Allen street, Boston, the police say.

Alfred LaBerge, thirteen years old, of Cedar road, Salem, died at the Salem hospital as the result of being struck by a machine on Highland avenue near his home. The automobile continued on its way without stopping.

In Lynn Harold Warren, sixteen years old, sustained a fractured skull when he was struck by a car operated by C. Fred Smith, Jr., of Swampscott.

Mrs. Mary E. Hadfield, sixty years old, of Southbrook, N. H., was killed in front of her home by a car driven by Mrs. Corrine Bigley of Hampton Beach. In Attleboro, Carlton Blackburn, eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Blackburn of No. 111 County street, died at the County Memorial Hospital from injuries sustained when he was hit by an automobile operated by Ambrose Ryan of Newark, N. J., at the corner of Summer and County streets. The boy jumped from an ice wagon. Ryan was held by the police on a technical charge of assault and battery and released under $300 bonds for the trial September 11. A more serious charge is expected.

R. I. CABARET WAR ENDS WITH SALE

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Sept. 4.—The race for prestige between the Casino and the De La Paga, rivals for Narragansett Pier's exclusive patronage, came to end today when Captain Isaac E. Emerson, owner of the De La Paga, bought the Casino for a sum much smaller than the original building cost. Although the price was not revealed, it is believed that Captain Emerson paid $100,000 for the property. The Casino was closed early in August for lack of patronage.

STEEPLEJACK CAN'T PAY; GOES TO JAIL

Worcester, Sept. 4.—Steeplejack Joseph P. St. Germain will climb no flagpole for some time, as he was sentenced to the House of Correction for failure to pay his wife his debt by the court. St. Germain pleaded that the steeplejacking business has gone to pieces since the war as people aren't using their flagpoles, and there's no making church steeple any more.

Corns Go Blue-jay to your druggist

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plaster. The action is the same.

Pain Stops Instantly

An Old Sore does not heal because the pus, which is continually forming, poisons the surrounding flesh. Dr. Porter's Antiseptic Healing Oil Stops the formation of pus, destroys the poison and heals the sore. It Stops Pain and Heals at the Same Time.

SHOWER FAVORS ON BEAUTIFUL 'MISS BOSTON'

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 6.—"Miss Boston," otherwise Miss Charlotte Trowbridge of Winthrop, Mass., winner of the Boston American's Charming Girl contest, enjoyed an eventful day today.

So many were the events scheduled for the entertainment of the inter-city beauties that "Miss Boston" was forced to make as many changes of costume as a vaudeville female impersonator.

At 9 o'clock she was met at her hotel by a representative of the pageant committee and escorted to the Northfield and Linwood Country Clubs in an automobile. There she witnessed a golf tournament that officially opened the three-day celebration of the pageant. Competition began in the thirty-hole medal play open handicap, for which three prizes will be awarded the winners, representing the different beauties.

SEES KITE FLYING. Following the golf tournament "Miss Boston" was escorted back to the beach, where she was an interested spectator at the open championship sand tennis tournament and kite flying contests held at the airport.

Then came lunch and a short rest and at 2 o'clock the escort again called for her to convey her to the hotel, where with the arrival of King Neptune the biggest feature of the pageant was held.

VISITS BEAUTY PAVILION. The next event was a visit to the private beauty pavilion on the pier, where Miss Boston and her sisters viewed the swimming championship races of the Atlantic City life guards.

After the races the Boston beauty was taken back to her hotel for dinner and another brief rest. At 8 o'clock her escort was again scheduled to appear and take her to the Garden Pier, where she was to be officially introduced to King Neptune. An extensive vaudeville program was prepared, together with the presentation of prizes to the winners of the day's events.

At 120 the queen of Boston's charming girls was to be escorted to the Rita Carlton Hotel ballroom, where the formal reception and ball to America's beauties was to take place, winding up the day in a veritable blaze of glory.

ORIENTAL MOTH RUINING HUB TREES

The oriental moth, a destructive tree pest, is again ravaging the Norway maples in Dorchester and Mattapan, according to a statement made by William P. Long, deputy commissioner of parks. The park department is planning a campaign to exterminate the pest.

Complaints of the destruction caused by this moth have been received by both the city park department and the State forestry department. Beginning October 1 a corps of inspectors will make a yard survey from South Boston to Mattapan. The trees will be sprayed with a mixture of arsenic of lead and water.

MOTOR BOAT PARTY TOWED BY WHALE

New Bedford, Sept. 6.—"Harness up the whale, James we're going sea-riding!" It's the newest thing now. Just catch yourself a whale, tie your boat to him and his away from here. Yesterday Robert Tilton and a party of summer residents on Cuttyhunk Island saw a forty-foot finback whale. They hove a harpoon into the startled leviathan, and he towed the small motor boat here, there and everywhere. Tilton saved gas.

GIRL LOCKED UP BY FATHER; CAN'T WED

Westfield, Mass., Sept. 6.—A reconciliation may be effected between the parents of Frank Colwell of Meadow street and Marion B. Taylor of East Bartlett street, whose intended marriage was suddenly halted Monday when the girl's father refused to allow her to leave the house to go to the church. The religious difference between the parents of the couple will probably be patched up, according to indications today.

ELECTRICAL STORM KILLS FIVE COWS

Unionville, N. T., Sept. 6.—A bolt of lightning killed five cows that were chained together on Frank Ford's farm several miles from the village. Another bolt ripped off a section of the steeple of Grace Church at Port Jervis.

YOUNG SALESGIRL ACCUSED BY BOSTON POLITICIAN OF 'FRAMEUP'

SANJEAN SAYS MISS WROE WANTS MONEY FROM HIM

John Sanjean, president of the Armenian Republican Association, and well known locally as an attorney and political figure, who was arrested, charged with threatening the life of a downtown salesgirl, told the Boston American that he was a victim of a "frameup" that was designed to extort money from him.

The girl on whose complaint he was arrested, he said, was arrested because she was a salesgirl, and that they had been friendly up until the middle of January of this year.

"She was just because I had been to see her some time," he said. "She told me that she had been with a blonde who was a beauty contest prize and she wanted to know about it."

Following the meeting two weeks ago, he said, he did not hear from her again. Last Saturday, when she sent for him with a request that he come to see her, he went.

PRUDENTIAL TO PAY FOURTH DIVIDEND

Judge de Courcy today allowed two petitions of Bank Commissioner Joseph G. Allen. One was for the payment of a fourth dividend on the savings department of the Prudential Trust Company, 145 per cent, amounting to $16,194. The other was for the payment of a second dividend of 20 per cent, to claimants against the commercial department of the same company. This amounts to $25,026.

Alice Harding to Become Bride Tomorrow on North Shore, Says Betty Alden

MISS AILSA MELLON

By BETTY ALDEN

THE feminine portion of the younger set along the North Shore are donning their most alluring frocks tonight, for Miss Ailsa Mellon is giving a dance at "Avalon," Priddy's Crossing. This affair is in honor of Miss Alice Harding and Robert Pell, whose marriage takes place tomorrow at Beverly Hills.

Ever since Andrew Mellon—who is Secretary of the Treasury—and his attractive daughter have been the talk of the North Shore, there has been the scene of many a jolly time, and I'm sure that the North Shore colony will be sorry, indeed, to see them return to Washington.

Ailsa Mellon is very much at home in the saddle. In fact, horse show fans in the vicinity of the capital have come to look upon this attractive young woman as one of the most expert riders thereabouts.

Secretary Mellon comes to the Shore every weekend to be with his daughter and son, Paul Mellon. I understand that the Mellons had hoped for a visit from the President, but as the President has been too busy at Washington to get away.

Among the houseguests when Miss Mellon has been entertaining at "Avalon" is the Honorable Mr. Harding, sister of tomorrow's bride and who will attend her maid of honor. During the past week, Margaret Harding visited a while at Mattapan, but she has returned to the Shore for the ceremonial.

Which reminds me that Mrs. Freddie Prince, Jr., the older sister of the bride, is giving a bridal dinner this evening at the Dexter cottage, where she and her family have been spending the summer.

FREDERICK AYER, JR. Neil Elton, Ellis Dressel, Thomas Frushington and Jimmie Appleton certainly had the means of wealth when they were riding on Labor Day. The four of them were spotted the horse show and polo games which were to take place at the Vynia Hunt Club, and of which they were in charge.

The show opened at ten in the morning, and they did not get off until the evening. The first of the events was a polo match, which was won by the Ayer, Jr., who is still as devoted to the sport as he was in his early days. Also there was Miss Anna Agassiz, who, however, had a fall and was walking about with her arm in a sling, which didn't at all prevent this speedy sportsman from smiling a good deal of the time.

A very royal entertainer is Harold Vanderbilt, who has been "Round Plain Farm," the Beverly Farms estate of Mrs. C. P. Vanderbilt, for August and September.

A number of gay house-parties were given along the Shore over the holiday, and not the least important of these was a party given by the prominent New York sportsman. On Saturday afternoon, he was at the station with his high-powered Italian car, and he was waiting for the guests, and when the machine started back for "Round Plain Farm" it was packed to the roof with human freight and suitcases.

On Saturday evening Mr. Vanderbilt gave a costume dance at his place, preceded by a dinner at the Myopia Hunt Club for 200 guests.

POMEROY ON 47TH YEAR IN PRISON

JOHN H. POMEROY began his forty-seventh year of confinement in the State prison at Charlestown. Although incarcerated longer than any other prisoner in the State, he is, however, according to prison officials, the one who has the best of his long term of imprisonment.

Mr. PomeroY's departure for Europe seems to indicate that the Lee family has decided to stop touring as ever. Mrs. Lee and her youngest daughter, Florence Lee, spent almost a year travelling abroad, returning to the Beverly Farms place about a month ago. No sooner had they arrived there than Mrs. Lee went some time visiting friends on Long Island. While there she met a man and another daughter, Mrs. Harry Pratt McLean (Beesie Lee), went up to Dublin, N. Y., for the Cabot-Holt nuptials. During their stay there they were the house guests of the bride's family, Mr. and Mrs. H. Handasyd Cabot.

LA FOLLETTE IN ANTI-HARDING STAND WINS

By the Associated Press.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6.—(Reuter) From 1,415 precincts out of 2,252 in the State for the Republican Senatorial nomination, received up to 10 a. m. today, gave La Follette 188,094, Canfield 16,266.

Milwaukee, Sept. 6.—Indications today were that Senator Robert M. La Follette had been overwhelmingly re-nominated in Wisconsin's primary election over V. A. Canfield as Republican candidate for United States Senator. The vote reported from 1,232 precincts out of 2,252 showed 184,924 for La Follette and 16,414 for Canfield.

It appears that the people of this State endorsed the house which La Follette had advocated at Washington and upon which he sought re-nomination, these were questions to the Election Commission Act, Newberry, the Pure Food Trust, and his opposition to the policies of President Harding.

Mr. Canfield was the candidate of the Citizens' Republican Conference, which had the backing of Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, Wisconsin Junior Senator. He was supported also by a good number of Republicans. Mr. Canfield's opponent, La Follette, was the most important vote in the election in the United States.

The Anti-Slavery League endorsed all the candidates opposed to La Follette.

Of the present Congress who sought re-nomination, H. A. Cooper, in the first, William H. Stafford, in the fifth, J. D. Beck in the seventh and E. E. Browne, in the eighth have been successful.

A close battle developed in the eleventh district, where the Republican candidate, A. P. Nelson, one of the Anti-Slavery League leaders in Congress, is running behind H. H. Paver, a "wet." The Anti-Slavery League and the association league, which is an amendment, Wisconsin division, took active part in the Congressional campaign.

Goodnow and Brown Lead N. H. Tickets

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 6.—Winning H. Goodnow and Marvin Fred H. Brown of Somersworth are the rival candidates for Governor of New Hampshire.

The fight for both Republican and Democratic nominations was won and the first winners were not fully decided until the returns were early today. Canfield's report now defeated.

Arthur G. Whittemore, for the Republican nomination, Brown won over John C. Hutchins of North Stratford.

San Francisco, Sept. 6.—Mrs. Veda Wahl told the court that her marital career had been far less romantic than the evenings she spent on the beach at Santa Cruz, California. "It was beneath an August moon, that he wooed and won me at the famous resort," Mrs. Wahl stated. "My husband, Irving Wahl, a railroad man, has been most heroic and ardent in his love, but as a money maker and provider he is an utter failure."

Patrick Boyle, a worker in the shoe trade in Lynn, committed suicide at his lodging house, No. 173 Liberty street, Lynn, today. The man made sure of death by not only severing an artery in his wrist, but slitting his throat.

He had been out of work for some time and was despondent, according to his friends. He has a sister in Lynn, Mrs. John P. Baker of Clarendon avenue.

WIN POINT IN CLASH WITH EDISON CO.

A rehearsing of the petition of the Gilchrist Company and of Maunroe Power of Boston on their protest against alleged discrimination against them by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company, was begun by the Commission on Public Utility today.

Chairman Henry C. Atwill presided, and the petitioners were represented by Greenville S. MacFarland. He urged the commission to take the initiative by fixing the rate which the company could charge under its coal clause, refusal to pay which led to the shutting off of service to the petitioners.

Chairman Atwill agreed to Attorney MacFarland's argument that the commission had power to fix a maximum.

OH GOSH, OH GEE, THERE'S NO REASON WHY THE WAVES SHOULD BE Set Down at Nantasket! It certainly looks as if you could pick up something else down there on the sands besides driftwood. Anyway, these ladies of the ensemble, "Tangerine" girls, to be exact, just hate the stuffy old stage for rehearsals on busy days and thus we catch them doing some new steps on the sands instead of in the theatre. The cool, sandy sand makes 'em feel like "steppin' high," they say.

BOSTON'S UNPRECEDENTED BUILDING UPHEAVAL EVEN EXTENDS TO its Narrow Streets! Never has this city been torn up, and reconstructed and made over as it is now. Torn up streets, however, which drag along and obstruct the sidewalks to a point where it is almost impossible to pass are a public nuisance. Bitter criticism has been levelled at the tardiness of the paving work on Essex street, near Washington. This is a busy section. Pedestrians are almost crowded off the walks by the great piles of stone. It rummies with the city in "jack up" the contractor.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD. Business Session Today! Charles E. Russell, past provincial Grand Master of Massachusetts, who is one of the outstanding figures at the Biennial convention, held at Tremont Temple.

He was tired out every night, until— He discovered by accident an idea that has saved the strength of millions

In a printing office in Lynn, Massachusetts, 25 years ago worked a tired compositor.

All day long he stood in front of his case setting type. Not the hardest work, perhaps—but he found himself each night with little energy left—and generally a backache in the bargain!

One night he felt unaccountably fresh after work—with his backache gone. For several days this kept up.

Suddenly the explanation dawned on him. Those days instead of standing on the hard floor he had stood on a rubber mat he had found about the office.

Next morning his rubber mat was gone. It was under the desk of a brother printer. He dragged it out, cut two pieces of rubber from the mat and fastened them to the heels of his shoes. And that was the start of the idea that resulted in O'Sullivan's Heels.

Making a good idea better

The printer saw the possibilities of his discovery. And he saw that the special development of a certain type of rubber—something far different from his crude rubber mat—would make this idea a thousand times more valuable.

For years he worked. Countless tests—experiments—and the brains of some of the world's best rubber experts brought it to perfection. And today the O'Sullivan idea has spread throughout the country.

Look at your heels!

Like all things of value, O'Sullivan's Heels have been widely imitated.

Are yours O'Sullivan's?

If they're not—ask your repairman for "O'Sullivan's" next time! They usually cost you no more than ordinary rubber heels. But notice the difference at the end of each day! See how much freer you are from tiredness and strain.

You'll understand then why millions of men and women today don't just "wear rubber heels"—they insist on O'Sullivan's!

Trembling city sidewalks wreck the seismograph

The seismograph is an instrument which registers the shock of earthquakes.

Long before our morning newspapers told what happened in San Francisco the seismographs in New York City had written their startling story.

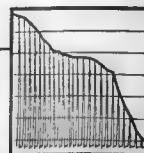

The shocks and jere from city trucks and street cars which keep our sidewalks trembling would soon destroy a seismograph. To avoid them and protect his instrument, the scientist houses it in a cellar, deep underground.

Is it any wonder that the human body, the most delicate instrument of all, needs some simple protection against constant shocks and vibrations?

India's Betrayer Back With More Untruths

Rustomjee Comes to America to Begin Second Propaganda Course

That British mercenary, Rustom Rustomjee, has come back to America again to betray his countrymen for a mess of pottage. He begins his second course of propaganda by denying that any considerable number of people died of starvation in 1918, and he makes a pretense of referring to some British documents, as if one could depend upon any British documents published for propaganda purposes concerning British conduct in India.

He says that not more than a thousand people died of starvation in that year, while the Indian nationalists say that 33,000,000 died of starvation that year.

We have before us a work entitled "India in 1920." It is a government publication, published in Calcutta, and prepared by L. F. Rushbrook Williams, director of the Central Bureau of Information for the Government of India. It is an official report prepared for presentation to Parliament in accordance with the requirements of the twenty-sixth section of the Government of India Act.

On page 150 of that publication are some tables of births and deaths. Table I. shows an increase in the death rate in the last six months of 1917, from twenty-eight to sixty-two and a half per cent. It was plain, downright murder; no other term can truly characterize it.

The death rate in the following six months of the next year is not given, but reports from the nationalist authorities say that the rate was even higher, so that deaths from starvation must have been even more than 33,000,000.

Now when it is considered that this was not done wholly to British incompetence, but to the fact that the British deliberately took the food away from the Indians, food which they had raised, and food in sufficient quantities to feed them all, you can understand the responsibility of the British for this awful loss of life. It was plain, downright murder; no other term can truly characterize it.

The creature who tells us that there were few persons who died of famine in India in 1917 and 1918, is the same creature who tells us that there was no longer in India today. We suppose he will pretend that even the families of the 40,000 people whom the British have put in prisons for political agitation against British misrule are not in need of assistance. This Rustomjee is not important enough to discuss any further, but his superior, a man who once held a dignified and important position in India, has ability still, even if he has sold out to the British government. He will soon be here and he will be challenged to discuss publicly Indian conditions with Indian nationalists here.

He will, of course, refuse to accept the challenge though he has the ability for public discussion. Why will he refuse? Because he knows he has a bad cause and that no amount of ability can conceal the truth.

An Italian Boy's Ancestors

No Wonder He Is Champion

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Saracen, Italian boy just out of his teens, played and defeated at golf the veteran player, "Joek" Hutchison, with a display of steady courage that amazed the gallery. It does not amaze if you have read a little of Roman history.

The ancestors of that Italian boy, walking around the golf links, used to walk along rougher roads, chewing raw wheat as they went, mile after mile, extending the Roman empire over the world.

If a man lacked courage, he never came back. The Italians are descendants of men who have been fighting for more than 2,000 years. They are all "professionals" when it comes to nerve and determination.

This nation owes gratitude to the noble Italian homeland that has sent so many Italians of good blood to this country. They build up wherever they go farms, factories, highways and railroads, and they are GOOD CITIZENS AND WELCOME.

Shaky Locomotives

Our Easy Lending Government

Copyright, 1922, Star Co.

Striking workmen said that railroad equipment was dangerous. The reply has been, "Nonsense; they seek to influence the public." Now, the Interstate Commerce Commission declares that the locomotives in the United States are damaged and defective.

Isn't it time for the government to show signs of life? It has been active enough in giving railroad owners hundreds of millions of public money when they wanted to borrow. Is lending them money all the government is able to do in the way of railroad control? It looks like it.

Federal inspectors of 70,000 locomotives are only fifty in number. How thoroughly can fifty men examine 70,000 locomotives—and how important is that examination, with mechanics to take care of the locomotives on strike?

Gas in Boston and in New York

A letter from President D. D. Barnum to Mayor Curley, states that, in view of the coal shortage, the Boston Consolidated Gas Company can make no reduction to its consumers. At the same time in New York the gas rate is cut ten cents for the entire city.

In Boston the rate is $1.30 per 1,000 for the average householder. The new rate in New York will be $1.15. In the Boston stock market Massachusetts Gas has been selling at new high prices for the year on several recent days. The cut in rates does not adversely affect New York Consolidated Gas stock.

The same coal emergency exists in New York as in Boston. It is bad enough for Boston consumers to have to pay high prices for gas when they can get it—without being forced to give up anything more for gas than necessity requires.

What Is the Matter With This Picture

"Beware! He Never Sleeps"

By Dr. Charles Fleischer.

We have it on the word of a man who frequently writes over the Boston Post Road that he is always fascinated by a signboard which decorates the front yard of a certain lonely farmhouse on that highway.

The sign reads: "Beware the Dog. He never sleeps."

That's a good sign. Probably it is an unfailing sign. You may not believe it. But just as likely, if you were on mischief bent, you would take no chances.

Perhaps the dog begins to bark at you as you start to make inquiries. And then you reassure yourself by recalling that barking dogs don't bite.

But you lose your assurance again, as you realize that he may begin to bite when he stops barking. And then you set upon that other proverb that discretion is the better part of valor.

And you hurry on your journey rather than spend your experimental sociability upon a dog that never sleeps.

Figuratively speaking, the virtue of making watchfulness (which is not the same as "watching waiting") is good one for you to acquire if you have it not.

No one should overtax his strength. You should have your play as well as your work, lest you become dull and inefficient.

But is the humane effort to prevent overwork we have glorified laziness?

The time clock is bad business. If you regard it not so much a means of proving your presence at your work as of limiting your hours of labor.

"The time clock is too short a time for you to make a success of your job." Twenty-four hours is none too much for it.

Keep at it everlastingly, if you want to succeed. Live your work and love it, if you want growth and life through your work.

Remember the dog that "never sleeps."

Remember the writer of a cleverness once imparted to him by the tireless head of Columbia University, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler. As you know, Columbia is the seat of a great army of ambitious young Jewish students.

Dr. Butler, hearing us intimate sympathetically how steadily play he would be kept up, "Yes, 'He that keeps his Israel shall

No Attention Paid to Anonymous Communications.

Gaston's Position Editor Boston American: I have read recently two editorials in the Boston Herald to the effect that I own or control the Boston Telegram, and that I am already told the editor of the Herald that I had no financial interests in the paper mentioned, and that what it does, or has done, or may do, in the opinion of the Herald is good or bad, is not attributable to me.

I have also stated that I have no control over the editorials or news columns of that sheet. I know, however, that it is favorable to my candidacy for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator, on the grounds that I can win the nomination and election.

I was not aware that the Telegram has reversed its attitude towards Mr. John F. Fitzgerald, candidate for the Democratic nomination for the gubernatorial candidacy, and that the Telegram has changed its attitude. It has done so of its own volition.

The Herald's statement concerning me in this campaign have absolutely no effect on my statements. I am no more responsible for the attitude of the Telegram towards my candidacy than John Jackson Walsh is responsible for the Herald's vigorous support of him.

If the support of my candidacy by the Telegram is proof that I own or control that newspaper, then the Herald's support of John Jackson Walsh is proof that he owns and controls the Herald.

In this, as well as in all other campaigns, I think it is just as necessary for candidates to stick to the facts as it is that candidates should do so—and much more.

Neither slumber nor sleep. A big hypothesis, don't you think? By no means. What is gratifyingly said of servilehood is too good to say of ambitious man.

The canine protector of his human master's life and property and the steward of his dying Master's trust, in labor and service, should neither slumber nor sleep.

The humblest task has that fidelity quality and the simplest job has that divine value. If you choose to glorify it—and yourself—in this fashion.

If This Is Your Birthday You Are LUCKY

You are versatile if born today, as is true of most versatile people, your success in life will depend entirely on your ability to organize your talents.

They are naturally varied and contradictory. You are a natural administrator, but at the same time you are often content to allow things to take their natural course. You are analytical, but unless the subject interests you you cannot bring yourself to study it. You are inventive, but not necessarily practical.

You are idealistic, but at the same time you will avail yourself of any means to your end. You are vain and vainly given to ostentation and display. You like to do things in the grand manner.

A child born today will be dominant and imaginative, but rather solitary and carefree. Famous persons born this day: General Lafayette.

SEEN AND HEARD

NEW county officials can boast of the record of Register of Deeds Thomas Leighton, Jr. of Middlesex County, born and educated in the University City he came to the office he is now the head of as a clerk in 1883. Since that time he has steadily. In 1913, after having served sixteen years as assistant register he was appointed register and has been re-elected ever since.

Lowell merchants never miss a bet. The other night thieves smashed the front window of a jewelry store and stole watches and other trinkets. When the store opened for business the next morning the hole was covered by a big sign which read: "After looking over all the jewelry stores in Lowell thieves decided we had the best goods and broke in."

On Washington street, near Summer, the other day a flyover bumped a large touring car. The rear fender of the latter gave way, then sprang into place again inside the flyover's front wheel. The wheels had to be taken off before the two cars could be separated. It was probably unique in the line of accidents.

By NICK FLATLEY.
George Aubach of Scarborough was 1 up on C. J. H. Tolley, famous English golfer, at the end of the eighteenth hole of their thirty-six-hole match at the Brookline Country Club today.

At the same point in the amateur championship, Rudy Knepper of Sioux City had a margin of 1 up on Francis Oulmet. Jesse Guifford, Jess Sweeter, Bob Gardner, Frank Godchaux and Chick Evans were out front in their matches.

Jesse Sweeter and Willie Hunter were the first pair to finish the morning round, the former intercollegiate champion leading the British five up. The youthful New Yorker was playing a brilliant game, scoring a 74 with sixes on the third and eighth. He took the lead on the first hole with a fine 4 and never did follow pace thereafter.

Young Mrs. Richard E. Hooker, who startled Newport at a dinner party by declaring her love for and her desire to be married to handsome Dick Hooker. And so the minister was called then and there. Now she insists on "good manners" by everybody, including the police.

Newport, R. I., Sept. 6.—Mrs. Hooker, who astounded Newport society recently by her marriage to Colonel Richard Stewart Hooker, believes she should be addressed with deference, even by a traffic cop, she complained to the police today that Jesse Scott, a colored officer, had been insolent to her when her brakes failed to hold and she couldn't stop the motor car she was driving. Scott was advised to be more temperate in his remarks, and Mrs. Hooker was told she had no case.

Mrs. Hooker, who was Dorothy Willard, suddenly asked for a preacher, during a dinner party at the mansion of her father, Colonel Joseph Willard of the U. S. Engineer Corps. She said she desired to be married at once to Colonel Hooker, who was present.

The Rev. Stanley Hughes of the Episcopal Church was summoned by Colonel Willard as soon as he recovered from his astonishment, and his daughter was joined in marriage to Colonel Hooker, who is twenty-six years her senior. She is not yet twenty years old.

EDDIE RICKENBACKER'S ENGAGED

The successful culmination of the romance of Miss Anna Frances Fitzpatrick of Cambridge, forbidden under her father's will to marry the man of her choice, was revealed today through the failure of her brother's brokerage house, James H. Fitzpatrick & Co.

Through the kindness and co-operation of her brother-in-law, Miss Fitzpatrick not only received a legacy but in the wife of her childhood sweetheart, Crawford Dearth, Ashland farmer.

They were married July 1 at Ashland at the summer home of the bride, and will continue to make their home there. Mrs. Dearth having given up her residence at No. 1418 Massachusetts avenue, Cambridge.

DISREGARDS WILL.
Disregarding the decree of a stern father, Frank X. Fitzpatrick of Cambridge, the old Louisiana lottery man, who objected to Dearth because of religious differences, the son agreed to a settlement of half the estate of $50,000 on his sister.

The elder Fitzpatrick died early in 1921, leaving a will dividing his estate equally between his two children, Anna Frances and James H. Fitzpatrick. The will contained a proviso that if the daughter married Dearth, whom she had known since childhood, she would be cut off with an income of only $25 a month.

When the will was probated the son disregarded this provision and agreed to an equal settlement, with the understanding that his sister might marry Dearth.

Needham Society Leader Is Freed From Chauffeur Who Took Judge's Auto

Mrs. Jessie M. Dodson, Needham society leader and one of the wealthiest women of the district, was today freed from her chauffeur-carrier-husband. She secured a divorce on the grounds of desertion in Dedham court.

With the divorce came the finale of a career that involves a breach of promise suit that startled local society, a runaway marriage with a handsome chauffeur, his imprisonment, the shattering of the girl's dreams—and finally the divorce.

BROUGHT LOVE SUIT.
In 1914 pretty, dashing Jessie M. Henry came out of the West and bought a mansion in Needham near the Newton line. Little was known of her, but her wealth and pleasing personality quickly won a place for her in local society.

Then came the news of her suit for breach of promise against Edward F. Ryan of Newton Upper Falls, a prominent and wealthy grocer.

This was settled after a deal of notoriety, and then Needham learned with surprise that Miss Henry had been the chief actor in a runaway marriage with her handsome chauffeur, William F. Dodson.

The infatuated young woman never suspected that her chauffeur-husband was the notorious "Washington Bill" sought in a dozen states.

STOLE AN AUTO.
For a time all went well with the Dodsons, but there came a time when "Washington Bill's" propensity to acquire property not his own could not be denied. His fall from grace was the theft of Judge Webster Thayer's Worcester.

There ensued a long chase and finally Dodson was caught in Montpelier and brought back to this town. For a time Mrs. Dodson had faith in him, but when he admitted not only that theft, but a long previous record she saw the light.

Now Dodson is serving a sentence of from three to five years in Charlestown State Prison. Mrs. Dodson today secured her freedom and the right to use her maiden name.

FLYER DITCHED; PLOT CHARGED BY ROAD

Atlanta, Ga., Sept. 6.—The Southern Railway Royal Palm Limited was wrecked today seven miles from Jacksonville, Fla., when a switch was thrown after the locomotive had been derailed by two officers of the railroad crew.

Five Pullmans and two coaches, together with the engine, left the rails, but reports said no one was injured.

The Royal Palm is the Southern's track tourist train between Chicago and Jacksonville. Officials of the railway declared the wreck was the work of men who deliberately attempted to ditch the flyer.

A piece of metal was found driven in the split rail where the switch was opened.

GIRL DRUG SLAVE, 19, SEEKS DEATH

STRUGGLE TOLD IN LETTERS

New York, Sept. 6.—Unsuccessful as an actress, gifted as a sketch artist, a tired and finally unresisting girl of nineteen

You know—herein. I am a girl, too, though perhaps you think I was long past that.
"To go on with the story—your know between you and I something is just making me write this—it is the last thing I'll ever write. It really wasn't my fault in the beginning. I mean about the dope.
"I left my home town to attain something that a million other girls pray to attain—a brilliant career on the stage. I landed in New York with $20 my parents had given me thinking it was more than sufficient to hold me until I obtained work and a large light tan nearly red suitcase. That was all I had to my name.
"I was absolutely a stranger, knowing little more than nothing about this city. All I had to guide me was a scummy little piece of paper with the address of an al-gave up her struggle with the pitfalls and temptations of life in the big city and attempted to die with poison.

Donnie Harrison—Twenty Harris on the stage—a pretty and naturally talented girl, living at No. 445 Madison avenue, last found, New York, an unresponsive to her efforts in seeking a career as had been her own will power in shaking off a drug habit.

Adrian of Berlin, the girl, the daughter of Mrs. Marie Harrison of No. 524 Charlotte avenue, Detroit, wrote last letters to her parent and others, drank brandy, smoked a foul cigarette and then swallowed poison.

The self-sacrificing spirit, which she dropped as she became unconscious, may possibly have saved her life, although she was taken to Bellevue in a critical condition and was not expected to live.

The story of her futile struggle with the drug habit and the discouragements and pains of battling with life in the world's greatest city without friends or resources is revealed in her letters.

They were written to her mother, Mrs. Marie Harrison, of the White Apartments, Detroit. One letter, not yet addressed, and unfinished when she drank poison, reads:

"Well, to start with, I am a dope. Yes, a plain dope girl."

least respectable boarding house. After just two days in the big city I came to realize that employment is not easy to get—for a chick.

"I also came to realize too, fully, you can beat that $20 in New York I have about or lose as a snowball in—well, you know.

"Furthermore, I experienced there and there my pang of regret that I had ever left the old home town and my first thrill of fear of what might happen to me—and did happen to me—when my money gave out.

"Days and days followed, and every day I went to the different offices only to be met with the same sharp 'no opening.'

"Days ran to weeks and weeks to months. There I was with no money. The landlady demanded her rent. I was down and out and disgusted with myself. But I wouldn't send home for money. I was too proud, and I didn't have a friend in the world who was able to help me.

"One night I went home tired out, terribly tired out—it was raining terribly—with the same reply 'No' in my ears. It was only to find my suitcase in the hall.

"I knew what that meant. No home for even that night. No place to sleep. Well, I walked miles and miles in that food with no plan—just aimlessly. I had one thought. If I kept on walking I might—"

A letter to the girl's mother, which reads like the sigh of a tired child, follows:

"This is the last night of my life. I intend to make it so. I have taken a small quantity of brandy, but I have a four-ounce bottle of veronal to drink now and then there will be no awakening this time. I intend to take it all at once—not sip it.
"So I shall take it all before the sleepiness comes upon me.
"I love you, darling, as much as I can. I shall take it all before the sleepiness comes upon me.
"I love you, darling, as much as I can. I shall take it all before the sleepiness comes upon me.

"You know, darling, I was always a sort of worry and a hindrance for you at times. For instance, the night I told Billy—I threw things and told him not to argue with me. But I realize now your wisdom, for if you had not done what you did you would have lost your house and food.
"So I make a hindrance and a nuisance that night, was I not?
"I guess I was born sort of tired. And a weakling in any way. I will not blame it on inheritance. I am awfully tired tonight. Awfully tired. There isn't any way of being cured of dope.
"This is the easiest way out. You told me once that you would rather have me jump into the river than be a low dope fiend. I realize now I'd rather take that jump.
"I left Arthur a letter as a last favor to a dead girl to cremate me and send you the ashes. Take them to the edge of Bell Isle and fling them into the wind.
"P. R.—I shall prove to you that returning to you is not an impossibility. But I shall not forsake you while you are on earth. Always, dearest of all, I love you."

He slipped up on the fifth, where his five gave the former title owner a chance to snatch back a hole. Jones won it back with a neat three on the seventh, but Gardner took the ninth and they started on the inward journey with the little South-easter one up.

GARDNER SHOWS CLASS.

After halving the tenth, Gardner took the long eleventh with a birdie four, tying two tremendous shots together. Another birdie two at the twelfth evened the match, and then a battle royal was on.

Gardner dropped his third birdie of the inward trip at the fifteenth, and went out in front. But Bobby got the conventional three at the sixteenth and evaded it once more. The Chicago star stuck his maulie second dead to the pin on the seventeenth, and dropped a three for an other birdie and a win. His second was off at the home hole though, and the Jones 4 was good for a win, which halved the match again.

MCNEILL HOLDS OWN.

Billy McNeill of Norfolk, another of the Boston banner bearers, held his own during the a. m. round, finishing even with Jimmy Johnston of St. Paul, the youngster who took Guilford to the last hole a year ago.

The Waterman started off very poorly and was four down at the sixth. He found his game there, and picked up two holes by the time the turn was reached.

Johnston, however, would not be denied and parried the match at the fourteenth. McNeill won the next hole, and halved the following two. He overapproached the home green, however, and took a six, while Johnston halved the match by getting on the green and dropping down in a couple of putts.

Aulbach started off very poorly in his match with Tolley, and getting a six on the first and losing the hole. Tolley was in in par figures. George also lost the third, though a poor shot, and the match began to look like a runaway.

But on the fourth, the public likes mischief cut loose. He hooked his drive into the rough to the left of the green and was stopped by trees. He had to shoot for the near edge of the green and just dropped in.

Tolley was straight down the middle and took his second six feet from the hole. Aulbach putted courageously, full thirty feet, and dropped in for a sensational birdie three. Tolley missed his try.

Both were straight off the fifth, and on with their seconds. The Englishman was away, and rapped the cup with a twenty-foot tap. Aulbach was three feet inside him, and evened the match by sinking another long one.

TOLLEY COMES BACK.

Then they went to the turn, halving every hole. Tolley was in trouble when he missed his tee shot at the ninth, and pushed his second into the woods, but he crashed his third through the trees and dropped it eight feet from the pin, then sunk the putt for a brilliant halt.

Their cards out:

Tolley 4 3 4 4 4 3 4 4—34
Aulbach 4 3 3 4 3 4 4 4—35

Aulbach and Tolley continued their battle to the very end and some for the home hole all even. They halved the tenth and the fifteen went ahead again at the eleventh when he was down in a par 5. Aulbach went bad and took a 7.

They halved the next five holes and the Scarboro youngster evened the match by winning the 17th, where Tolley took a five, one over par.

Coming home, Tolley hooked into the rough, missed his second and stuck his third, still from the high grass, into the bunk guarding the green. He was on in four with a fifteen-foot putt for his five.

Aulbach's second hit on the edge of the green, but kicked off and into the trap at the left. He pitched well on, ran past the hole with his putt and then dropped a bounce one for his five, after the Englishman had failed to drop his.

Their cards:

In Aulbach 4 3 5 4 4 4 4 4—35
Tolley 4 3 4 4 3 4 4 4—34—74

QUINCY IN HARD MATCH.

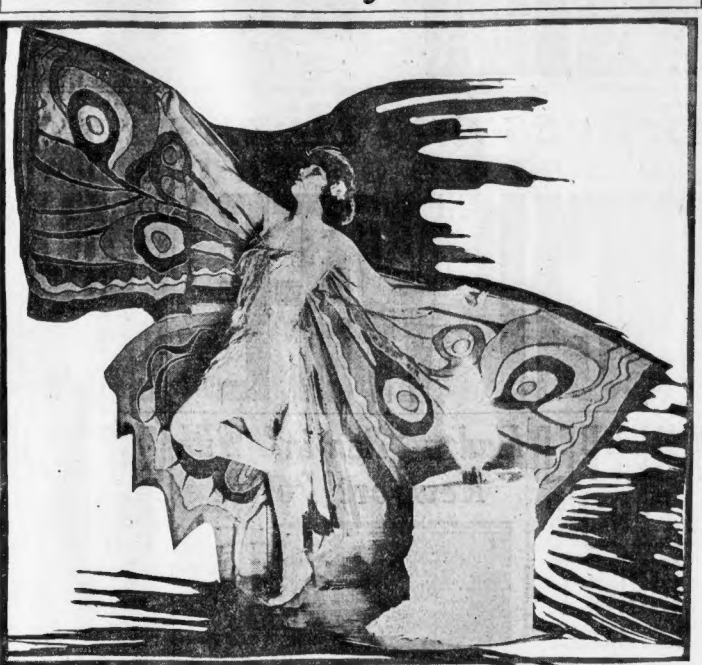

Francis Quincy was a bit off on his approach, and arrived at the turn two down to Rudy Knopfer, who was playing steadily, and flirting with the flag on every maulie shot.

They halved the first hole, neither being up with their seconds. Knopfer was in a trap to the left, and Francis in the rough on the other side of the green. He missed a longish putt for a win.

The Waterman took the second when Quincy's approach trickled over the green and into a trap. Rudy dropped his third and was down in the conversation.

BEBE DANIELS IN HER NEW MOTH COSTUME

This costume, designed and made for Bebe Daniels for a "Moth Dance" in the photoplay "Singed Wings," is declared by critics to be one of the most beautiful ever prepared for such use. Made to resemble a huge and beautiful moth, nearly fifty yards of Vatikorgette and thirty yards of ostrich fringe were required for the costume. International News Reel photo.

The best shots of the week on the third, whanging a long iron onto the green, less than two feet from the cup, for his second. This evened the match, and Outmet went ahead at the fifth, when he dropped a current fifteen-footer for a fine birdie three.

Long puts which failed to drop at on his approach. He missed a long putt here by the traditional hair's breadth.
